DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless—

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Erba et al, US.

Pat. No. 6,292,233.

3. Claims 1, 15-16, 22-25, Erba teaches a standby circuit for an electrical device [14 of Fig. 1] having one or more signal inputs [input signals from 38, 40, 42 of Fig. 2] and a control unit [32 of Fig. 2] and a control output [see the control unit output G of Fig. 2] for the control of a power supply unit [col. 3, lines 2-6], in which the control unit [14 of Fig. 1] initiates an activation procedure on the occurrence of a predefined activation event at the signal input [in response to the keyboard, zero crossing and remote control signals], in which a signal to switch on a power supply unit is generated at the control output [abstract, also see Fig. 2 and related disclosure].

4. Claim 2, Erba teaches one of the signal inputs is a useful signal input for a useful signal of an electrical device [see Fig. 2].

5. Claim 3, Erba teaches one of the signal inputs is a switch input (3) for the connection of a button [see Fig. 2].

Art Unit: 2116

6. Claims 4-5, Erba teaches one of the signal inputs is a remote control input (5) for the signals from a wireless remote control [see Fig. 2].

7. Claim 6, Erba teaches one of the signal inputs is a digital data input, which can be connected to any digital interface, such as computer networks [see Fig. 2].

8. Claim 7, Erba teaches a store is provided [inherent].

9. Claim 8, Erba teaches a clock is provided [see oscillator 70 of Fig. 3].

10. Claim 9, Erba teaches the control unit performs a time switch function, in which an activation time is preset, and the activation procedure is initiated on reaching the activation time [col. 4, lines 47-62].

11. Claim 10, Erba teaches one or more clock inputs are provided [inputs 2 and 3 of Fig. 3].

12. Claims 11, Erba teaches one or more communication terminals are provided for sending and/or receiving data to/from the control unit and/or the store [col. 2, line 65 thru col. 3, line15].

13. Claim 12, Erba teaches the circuit (ZPS) is constructed as a single integrated component [see Fig. 2].

14. Claims 13-14, Erba teaches the control unit forwards the signals arriving at the remote control input via a communication terminal [col. 2, line 65 thru col. 3, line15].

15. Claim 17, Erba teaches a power supply circuit (76) is provided for supplying electrical energy to the standby circuit, while the power supply circuit draws electrical energy directly from the electricity power grid [36 of Fig. 2].

16. Claim 18, Erba teaches an energy store is provided for supplying electrical energy to the standby circuit (ZPS) [see the details of the power supply stage 36 in Fig. 3].

Art Unit: 2116

17. Claim 19, Erba teaches is a rechargeable element, while the energy store is charged when the power supply unit is switched on [see the details of the power supply stage 36 in Fig. 3].

18. Claims 20-21, Erba teaches the control unit of the standby circuit is programmed when the device is switched to the power-down mode so that, after a predetermined period of time the device is switched back to the power-up mode, so that the energy store is charged again, while the period of time is calculated so that the rechargeable element supplies sufficient electrical energy for the operation of the standby circuit for this period of time [col. 3, lines 35+].
